Croatian wording:

Agreement on territorial jurisdiction

Article 70

Provided that statute does not determine exclusive territorial jurisdiction, parties may agree on a court of first instance without territorial jurisdiction, provided that such court has competence ratione materiae. If the statute stipulates that two or more courts have territorial jurisdiction over a particular dispute, parties may agree on the jurisdiction of one of those courts at first instance or another court with competence ratione materiae.

Such an agreement shall be valid only if made in writing and if it concerns a particular dispute or several disputes all of which arise from a particular legal relationship.

The agreement on territorial jurisdiction is made in writing if executed by exchange of letters, telegrams, telexes, or other means of telecommunication that produce written evidence of a concluded agreement.

The plaintiff has to enclose the agreement document with the suit.
